

MIDWEST THERMAL SOLUTIONS

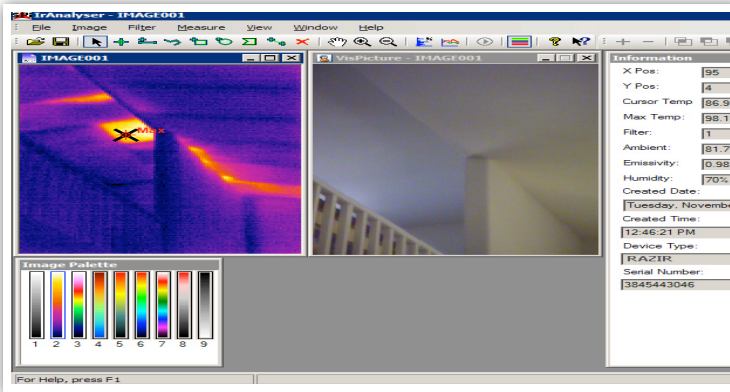

FOR ALL YOUR THERMAL IMAGING NEEDS

What is a thermal energy audit?

A thermal energy audit provides you, the homeowner with an unprecedented look into your homes energy consumption. Specifically, where your home is the most inefficient and where you can save money on your heating and cooling bills.

What kind of report will I get?

We will provide you with a comprehensive analysis of your entire home. We focus on several areas including: windows/doors, insulation, electrical outlets and box, water tank, duct work, and air leakage. We can diagnose water infiltration, pest infestations, and inspect your electrical wiring. Your report will include pictures and recommendations on corrective actions.

What do I have to do?

Nothing, except provide us with about 1.5 to 2 hours of your time in your home, showing us where these key components are located.

What does it cost?

Typically, the cost to have your home inspected pays for itself through the energy savings you receive in less than a year. Each home is unique as are the energy consumption habits of the homeowner. To receive a detailed quote, contact us today to see how you can become more energy efficient!

What do you do?

We have a very sensitive high tech camera that uses infrared technology and pressure testing to determine the energy ratings of properties and their surroundings. With this information, we make recommendations to homeowners that will help them become more energy efficient and in turn, save you money! We've also been able to locate safety issues, such as bad electrical wiring, and resolved the issue before it became a problem.

Why Midwest Thermal Solutions?

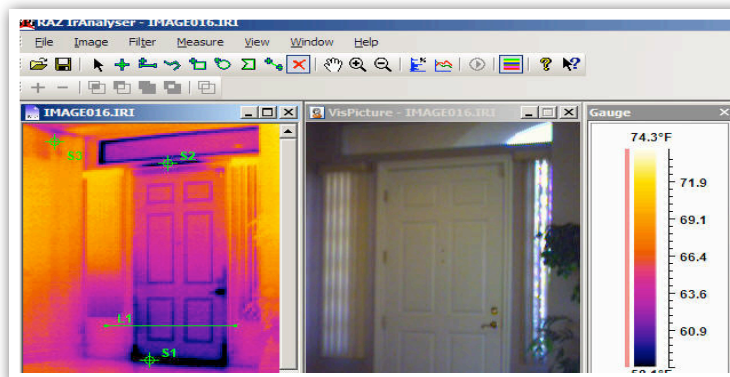

We are the most reliable, cost effective way to see what you the homeowner can't see with the naked eye. We are licensed, bonded, and insured. We are professional, courteous, and timely. We do what we say and STAND BEHIND IT!

Water Problems?

Energy Tax Credit?

In most cases this can be applied as an energy tax credit, consult your tax advisor for details.
